consistently committed to his personal vision of a world without nuclear weapons; his advisers were determined to turn him away from that course." (Shultz person, Turmoil and Triumph, p. 360) ↵

- ² On June 17, Reagan person sent Andropov person a letter of congratulations upon his election as Chairman of the Presidium. (Reagan Library, Jack Matlock person Files, USSR Subject File, Andropov person (4)) On June 22, Andropov person sent a short reply in Reagan, Ronald person. (Ibid.) In a July 6 memorandum to the President person, Mr. President; the President; RR; Reagan; Ronald W. Reagan to your congratulatory message avoids the code words known to you as person. However, instead of speaking of working together, as you did in your message, he implies in his last sentence that the burden of proof is on us to take 'practical steps.'

"This thrust is consistent with Gromyko person's recent comments on the prospects for a summit, which also implied that a change in U.S. policy is necessary. I consider this an obvious but not surprising attempt to position the Soviets as the aggrieved party. The main implication for our own public statements is to continue the same cautious, non-committal line we have followed up to now in commenting on the prospects for a summit meeting." (Ibid.) Reagan person initialed Clark person's memorandum, indicating he saw it.
